To Him Who Holds the Key
Rev 3:7

If you add the meanings of the names from Abram to Dinah you'd have the following statement of praise: "High father, father of nations, God hears the laughter of a rough man who deceives as (he) struggles with God. See a son who hears with praise, he has vindicated my struggle. A troop is coming that's happy. My reward and and honor may he add twice fruitful who will not forget the son of my right hand, at judgement." The words underlined are added to the original name meanings. To better illustrate this statement of praise look at the names and their meaning, in order.

Septuagint and Vulgate. You may also find references to Masoretic Text, Samaritan Pentateuch or Syriac. What all of this means is that the exact genealogy of the Bible may never be known. This chart illustrates the various blood-lines as recorded in the Bible and makes notes via dashed lines or astericks where there are differences between different books of the Bible.

GUIDE TO COLORS AND LINES

- 1 Women are highlighted in yellow
- 2 Green lines are male/female partners
- 3 Black lines are children of the above union or descendant
- 4 Blue lines show same person under two different lines
- 5 Notes are numbers; if colored it is located in another tribe area
- 6 Dashed lines represent two different presentations of the same line from two different Bible verses and presents a conflict.

Benjamin is the most difficult tribe to chart a line of descent. There are no less than three locations in the Bible giving the sons of Benjamin: Genesis 46:21 - Benjamin had 10 sons, 1 Ch 7:6 - Benjamin had 3 sons, and 1 Ch 8:1-2 - Benjamin had 5 sons. Hebrew traditions may name a son, a grandson, or other important male members of the family as a son. Along with this there are 2 locations for the genealogy of Saul: 1 Ch 8:1-39 and 1 Ch 9:35-44.

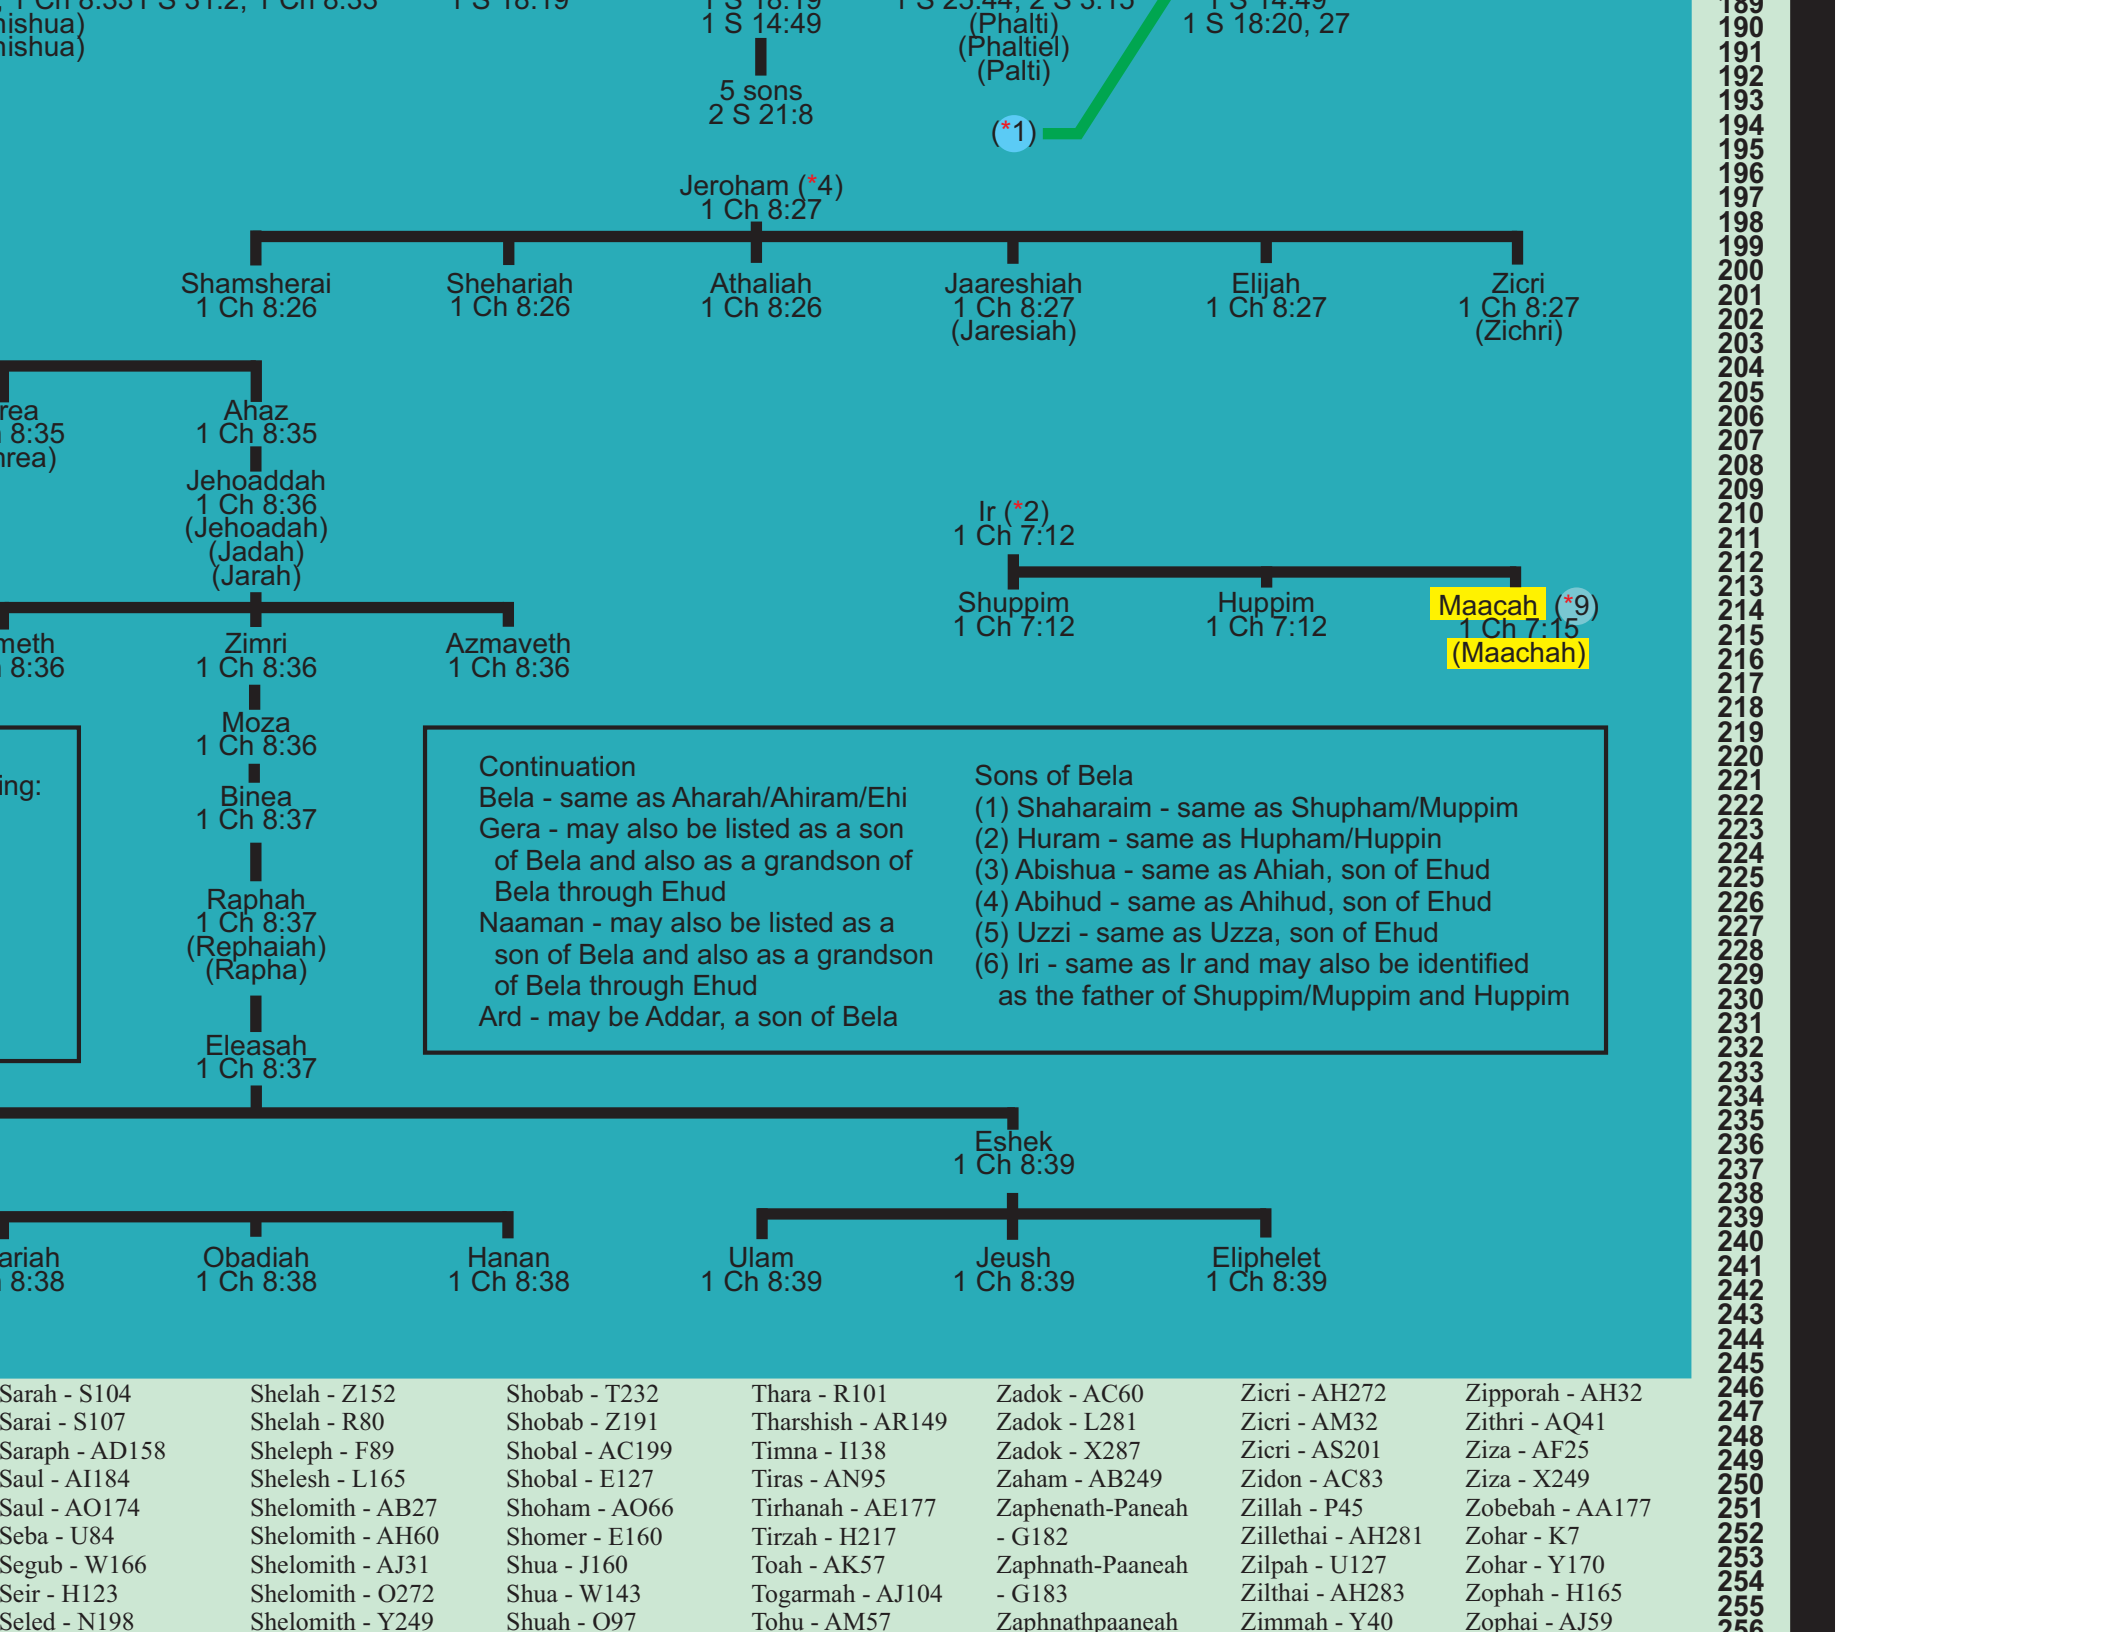

Within all these verses and others it appears that Benjamin may have had 6 sons. Look at the following:

- (1) Beker - same as Becher
- (2) Ashbel
- (3) Rosh
- (4) Rapha
- (5) Jediael
- (6) Nohah
